THE King has been pleaſed to order a Writ to be iſſued under the Great Seal of Great Britain, for ſummoning Colonel Thomas Twiſſleton, of Broughton Caſtle in the County of Oxford, to Parliament, as a Baron of the Kingdom of Great Britain, by the Name, Stile and Title of Baron of Saye and Sele.

Admiralty-Office, June 30, 1781.

Extract of a Letter from Captain William Peere Williams, of His Majeſty's Ship Flora, to Mr. Stephens, dated Spithead, June 27, 1781.

ON the 3d of May I ſailed from Port Mahon, in Company with His Majeſty's Ship Creſcent, with an Intent to get through the Gut as ſoon as poſſible.

On the Morning of the 23d, at Day-light, we diſcovered Eight Sail of ſquare-rigged Veſſels to Windward of us: About Seven we plainly diſcerned they were a Spaniſh Squadron, conſiſting of a 74 Gun Ship, Four Xebecks, an Armed Ship, and Two Bombs, which we were informed a Day or Two preceding were deſtined for Gibraltar. At the ſame Time the Spaniſh Commodore made the Signal to chace, and bore down upon us with his whole Force. At Nine he made another Signal, and Five of his Squadron hauled up for the Spaniſh Shore, while he in the 74, with the Two Xebecks of 36 Guns, continued to purſue us. About Eleven one of the Xebecks got within Gun-ſhot of the Creſcent, and a running Fire, in which His Majeſty's Ship received no Damage, continued between them for upwards of Three Hours. Between Two and Three in the Afternoon, finding the Creſcent cloſely purſued by the Xebeck, and apprehenſive an Accident might happen to occaſion her falling into the Enemy's Hands, I ſhortened Sail, luffed up, and dropped with the Flora in between them, giving the latter what Guns I could bring to bear upon her; and when I judged the Creſcent well out of Reach of the Enemy, I made Sail after her. I had the Misfortune to loſe One Man, and the Arm of another, from their too great Eagerneſs in loading their Gun without ſponging it. Between Four and Five the Xebeck brought to, to repair ſome Damage ſhe had received from the Creſcent in her Maſts and Rigging, and to give the Commodore, who was ſome Diſtance a-ſtern, an Opportunity of coming up with her. At Six they renewed the Chace; but we, altering our Courſe in the Night, ſaw nothing of them the Day following. This Event drove us back as far as Cape Palos, off which we cruized for Two Days. Meeting with nothing but Neutral Veſſels, we ſtood over for the Barbary Shore, and, taking every Advantage of the Wind, arrived off Gibraltar the 29th. At Five in the Morning we brought-to off the Rock, to apprize General Elliott of the Spaniſh Squadron. I then ſtood over towards Ceuta, in Company with the Creſcent, to make out Two large Ships we had obſerved at Day-break to Windward of us. Diſcovering them to be Dutch Frigates, we prepared our Ships for immediate Action; but the Wind increaſing in the Gut to a Storm, obliged us to wait a more favourable Opportunity. At Seven in the Evening the Gale abated, and the next Morning the Sea was conſiderably fallen. Having kept the Enemy in Sight all Night, at Day-break we edged towards them, and at Five commenced the Action, Ship againſt Ship, within a Cable's Length of each other, which was continued without Intermiſſion for Two Hours and a Quarter, when our Adverſary ſtruck her Colours. She proved to be the Caſtor Frigate, of Rotterdam, commanded by Captain Pieter Melvill, mounting 26 Twelve and 10 Six Pounders; her Complement conſiſting of 230 Men.

The Action between the Creſcent and Brill, a Frigate of the ſame Rate as the Caſtor, mounting 26 Twelve, 2 Sixes, and 8 Four Pounders, continued ſome Minutes longer; when an unlucky Shot carrying away the Main and Mizen Maſts of the Creſcent, and the Wreck falling within Board, whereby her Guns were rendered uſeleſs, and the Ship ungovernable, Captain Pakenham, as you will obſerve by the incloſed, was reduced to the diſagreable Neceſſity of ſtriking the King's Colours. Seeing her Situation, we, with great Difficulty, got our Ship's Head towards her, and by that Means prevented the Enemy taking Poſſeſſion of her, who made off in the beſt Manner they could. Had our diſabled State been ſuch as to have permitted us to have purſued, the bad Condition of the Creſcent and Caſtor (both which Ships made between Four and Five Feet Water an Hour) would have rendered ſuch a Step unjuſtifiable.

The ſteady and reſolute Behaviour of my Officers and Crew on this Occaſion merits my warmeſt Praiſe and Admiration; and I hope will recommend them to their Lordſhips Favour.

It would be doing Injuſtice to the Merit of Captain Pakenham, his Officers, and Ship's Company, if I concluded my Letter without acknowledging they did as much as Men could do to ſupport the Dignity of the Britiſh Flag, till that unfortunate Accident, which deprived them of every Means of Reſiſtance, and the Succeſs that would otherwiſe have attended. The Brill muſt have received conſiderable Damage from the Creſcent; her Main Maſt was ſeen to go by the Board early in the Afternoon.

I beg you will acquaint their Lordſhips, that I took upon me to recommiſſion His Majeſty's Ship the Creſcent, and appointed my Firſt Lieutenant, Mr. John Bligh, to the Command of her; reinſtating the Reſt of the Officers; and that Lieutenant Ellery,

[Price Seven-Pence.]

Ellery, Second-Lieutenant of the ſaid Ship, having ſince died of the Wounds he received in Action, I have appointed Mr. Peter Creed, Maſter of the Flora, whom I ſtrongly recommended to their Lordſhips for Promotion after the Action with the Nymph, to ſucceed him; which Steps I hope their Lordſhips will approve. In my own Ship I have appointed Mr. John Evans to act as Third Lieutenant, a young Man who has ſerved his Time in the Navy, and who is very deſerving of Promotion.

The following is an Account of the Killed and Wounded on Board His Majeſty's Frigates Flora and Creſcent; and the Dutch Frigate Caſtor.

Flora; { 9 killed. 32 wounded.

Among the latter is Lieutenant Poſſell of the Marines; Mr. Stewart, Gunner, who I fear will not ſurvive; and Mr. Hutchinſon, Maſter's Mate.—Eight Men have ſince died of their Wounds.

Creſcent, { 26 killed. 67 wounded.

Among the former is greatly to be regretted Captain Hayward of the Navy, who was a Volunteer in the Creſcent; and fell diſtinguiſhing himſelf in a moſt gallant Manner.—The latter, Lieutenant Ellery, Second of the Creſcent, who died a few Days after of the Wounds he received; as alſo one of the Seamen.

Caſtor, { 22 killed. 41 wounded.

Among the former was their Officer of Marines.—11 of the latter are ſince dead.

I am ſorry to add to this Letter a Circumſtance which gives me infinite Concern.

As ſoon as the Damages of the Three Ships were repaired in the beſt Manner we were able, which employed us Five Days, we proceeded on our Paſſage without Interruption till the 19th inſtant; when, early in the Morning, in Lat. 47. N. Long. 6: 30 W. being in Chace of a Privateer Brig, which had dogged us all Night, and Part of the preceding Day, I diſcovered, upon the clearing away of a Squall, Two Ships to Windward edging towards me; whereupon I veered Ship, and returned to the Creſcent and Caſtor, flattering myſelf the Appearance of our Force united would check the Ardour of their Purſuit: But in this I was miſtaken; they ſtill continued the Chace, encouraged, I have no Doubt, by the diſabled Appearance of my Conſorts, and gained upon us very faſt. Conſcious of our actual Want of Strength, I did not think it adviſeable to hazard an Action, and my Officers were unanimouſly of the ſame Opinion. Each Ship therefore ſhaped a different Courſe, and about One o'Clock P. M. I had the Mortification to ſee the Caſtor retaken by one of the Frigates, which fired a Gun and hoiſted French Colours, though till that Moment they had chaſed under Engliſh. The other Frigate, not being able to come up with the Flora, bore away about Three o'Clock after the Creſcent, and, as the Night was clear, I am very apprehenſive ſhe fared the ſame Fate as the Caſtor.

When their Lordſhips reflect how reduced the Complement of His Majeſty's Ships were by the Loſs of the Killed and Wounded, and from the Number of Men ſent on Board the Prize, viz. 38 from the Flora, and nearly the ſame Number from the Creſcent, (which Men were conſtantly employed at the Pumps to keep the Ship free) I flatter myſelf they will acquit me of having acted improperly on this Occaſion.

N. B. The Flora had 36 Guns, and 270 Men; the Creſcent 28 Guns, and 200 Men.

Copy of a Letter from the Honourable Captain Pakenham, of His Majeſty's Ship Creſcent, to Captain Williams, of the Flora, dated at Sea, the 30th of May, 1781.

SIR,

I HAVE the Mortification to inform you, that, after an Action of Two Hours and Twenty Minutes, the abſolute Impoſſibility of fighting longer reduced me to the diſtreſſing Extremity of ſurrendering to a Dutch Frigate, of ſuperior Force, His Majeſty's Ship I had the Honor to command. The diſabled State of our Opponent prevented his being able to take Poſſeſſion; and as the Ship is retaken by having drifted down under your Protection, I requeſt you will ſend an Officer to command her, till my Conduct has been inveſtigated by a Court Martial. Though the Quarter-Deck, Forecaſtle, and Four of the Main Deck Guns were diſabled, and our Head Yards and Sails were ſhot away early in the Engagement, I had no Reaſon to apprehend that the Conteſt would have ended ſo unfavourably; but the Wreck of our Main, Mizen-Maſt, and Booms, falling into the Waiſt, rendered uſeleſs all the Guns before the Main-Maſt, as well as loſt all Government of the Ship; and our being to Leeward left us no Chance of getting on board him. In this Situation ſhe fell round off with her Stern expoſed to the Enemy's Broadſide; when having no Guns to fight, and not a Yard of Canvas to ſet, I determined, with the unanimous Advice of the Officers, to ſtrike His Majeſty's Colours. The Poſition which I was obliged to take to engage our Enemy cloſe alongſide was exceedingly diſadvantageous with reſpect to the other Dutch Frigate, who did us ſome material Damages, by raking us in the Courſe of the Action; we however omitted no Opportunity of returning her Fire, when our Guns could do any Execution. The univerſal Alertneſs and Intrepidity of the King's Officers and Ship's Company merit my warmeſt Acknowledgments; and it concerns me exceſſively to acquaint you, that (though no exact Returns have yet been made) the Number of Killed and Wounded muſt to a Certainty exceed Eighty. Among the Killed is Captain Hayward, and among the Wounded Lieutenant Ellery; both Officers, whoſe Behaviour on this unfortunate Occaſion excites my Admiration.
